This Month ...

Professor Bernard Guyer of the Department of Maternal and Child Health in the School of Hygiene and Public Health at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore USA will visit QISPP in September.

Prof. Guyer will be speaking at a seminar on approaches to injury prevention and on paediatric mortality and morbidity statistics.

The seminar will be held on Thursday September 30 at the Community Child Health Building, 184 St Paul's Terrace, Brisbane, from 4 pm to 6 pm.

The Consumer Affairs Product Recall Notices this month cover vehicles, safety switches, chainsaws, cast iron chairs, medicine and Smith's Chips.

Injuries to Home Handypersons

QISPP recorded 4,794 injuries to people carrying out home, garden or vehicle maintenance during a 2 year period.

The majority (90%) of people reporting these injuries were males. The data showed that although those injured ranged in age from 15 years to over 80 years, one quarter of those injured were aged 30 to 39 years.
The injuries in this group were admitted at a rate of one in ten presentations, which was comparable with the database average admission rate of 12%.

As might be imagined, the incidence of home maintenance injuries doubled on Saturdays and Sundays, with half of the entire subset of injuries occurring on weekends. The hours between 2 pm and 5 pm were the most common time on weekends for injuries of this nature to occur.

88% of home handyperson injuries occurred in the injured person's garden or garage.

One in four injuries was a superficial abrasion to or foreign body in the eye, and 20% of injuries were lacerations to the fingers or hand. One in ten injuries was a fracture.

The most common items involved in these injuries were:

- grinding or sanding equipment
- saws
- lawn mowers
- ladders
- welding equipment
- hammers
- cleaning/maintenance chemicals (mainly paints, petrol and swimming pool chemicals)

commonly in the living or sleeping areas. 7% occurred in transport areas such as public roads, driveways, footpaths and parking areas.

Over half of the injuries were the result of falls. Steps and stairs were implicated in 7% of cases (could it be that the highest 'Queenslander' home constitutes a hazard not seen in other states?).

Beds were a factor in 6% of injuries. Nursery furniture was involved in a further 6% of injuries, with baby walkers featuring most often in this subcategory. Nursery furniture, in particular high chairs were examined in our July bulletin.

Grocery or shopping trolleys were implicated in 1% of head injuries to children under five.

Did You Know...

The top 4 injuries resulting from health and fitness activities (use of exercise equipment and weights, jogging and aerobics) are:

1. sprained ankles
2. bruised feet or toes
3. lacerated hands
4. sprained knees
5. lacerated feet

Head Injuries in Children Under Five

In a 5 year study of head injuries to children under five, QISPP found that 80% of the 7,149 injuries occurred at home, most Season Watch

- Children swallow more moth balls, camphor blocks and naphthalene flakes in September than any other month of the year, as folk put their winter clothing into storage. Caution should be exercised to keep them out of reach of children during packing and while in storage.

- As summer approaches and you are cleaning the swimming pool, don't even think about propping the gate in your pool fence open. An open or malfunctioning gate is the most likely point of access to a fenced pool for toddlers. This has been the situation in all cases known to us of toddler drowning occurring in fenced domestic pools.

A horse in Queensland recently made its way through an open gate and got into a domestic swimming pool. It required sedation and a crane to extract it.
